1. WHY WE NEED A COMMUNICATIONS STRATEGY

1.1 The purpose of this strategy is to clarify the arrangements for communicating with our staff, patients and stakeholders; and to set out what needs to be done to help Poole Hospital NHS Foundation Trust deliver its objectives.

1.2 The strategy takes a focused and integrated approach to communications, which is in line with the trust’s vision and business objectives. It will support delivery of the goals set out in the Poole Hospital NHS Foundation Trust annual plan.

1.3 The trust recognises that good communication is vital to the success of the organisation, especially during a period of transition and change. Good communications can help to:

- inform and educate
- promote awareness
- engage and involve
- facilitate change
- earn understanding and support
- influence opinion and behaviour.

1.4 We believe that our communications should be based on a set of guiding principles and standards consistent with the values set down the Poole Approach, which underpins our philosophy of care.

1.5 The Poole Approach states that Poole Hospital will strive to provide: ‘friendly professional, patient-centred care with dignity and respect for all’.

1.6 This means that our patients will receive excellent care and treatment in a safe and clean environment and that we:

- listen to our staff, patients and the public
- give information that is relevant and accessible
- safeguard patient privacy, confidentiality and choice
- welcome and involve families, carers and friends to participate in care
- treat each other with respect and consideration
- value and benefit from diversity in beliefs, cultures and abilities
- continually improve the quality of our services by learning from what we do
- take responsibility and are accountable for our own actions
• expect staff and patients to take their share of responsibility for their own health
• work with and support all organisations that are committed to promoting the health of local people.

1.7 Our communications will adhere to this set of values and be:

• two way and inclusive
• open and honest;
• consistent
• relevant and accessible
• planned, targeted and timely
• concise and clear
• corporate
• publicly accountable
• measured and regularly reviewed.

1.8 These values apply equally across all of Poole Hospital’s key audiences: our patients and public; staff; commissioners; stakeholders; and our members.

1.9 The strategy and supporting policies will enable us to plan our communications and ensure that they make best use of resources and are delivered to the same high-quality standards as our clinical services.

2. WHAT WE WANT TO ACHIEVE – AIMS AND OBJECTIVES

2.1 Our overall aims are to positively promote the work of the trust and to actively inform and engage all of our key audiences and stakeholders, both internal and external.

2.2 The key objectives of the communications strategy are to:

• ensure that staff, patients, stakeholders and the local community receive timely, relevant and accurate information about the trust, and that we listen and respond to their views
• raise the profile of Poole Hospital and promote its reputation as a centre of excellence, offering first-class, patient-centred services which are provided with dignity and respect at all times
• maintain public confidence in our services so that people view Poole as the hospital of choice
• integrate communications within the trust’s overall business objectives
• provide robust arrangements for maintaining good relations with the media
• help Poole Hospital’s staff, patients and stakeholders to understand what being an NHS Foundation Trust means for them, and to actively encourage membership
• define how we co-operate with third parties with roles in relation to the hospital.

3. WHERE WE ARE NOW - CURRENT COMMUNICATIONS STRUCTURE

3.1 The communications service within the trust is led by the head of communications and fundraising, who reports directly to the chief executive. The fundraising function also sits within the directorate, enabling us to make best use of synergy between the two functions.

3.2 The core roles and responsibilities of the communications service can be summarised as:

• staff communications, engagement and involvement
• managing the reputation of the organisation
• media relations
• public relations
• publicity campaigns
• advising on the production of high-quality patient information
• communications with commissioning organisations
• managing and developing digital communication channels, including the public website and social media
• public consultation and developing links with stakeholders
• trust identity and branding
• advertising and sponsorship
• ensuring the provision of high-quality staff, patient and public information
• commissioning art, design and printing
• supporting FT member engagement and recruitment
• supporting corporate fundraising

4. WHAT WE COMMUNICATE - KEY MESSAGES

4.1 If Poole Hospital is to communicate effectively with staff, patients and stakeholders, it is important that key messages are identified to ensure a clear and consistent approach.

4.2 These key messages should be based on the trust’s vision, its six supporting strategic aims and its business objectives.
Robust resource management

4.3 The NHS is publicly funded. We will manage our funds tightly without waste, adhering to the NHS core principles: that the NHS will provide a universal service for all based on clinical need, not ability to pay. Being an NHS Foundation Trust gives us financial freedoms that will allow us to use surplus funds to further improve patient care.

Improving our patients’ experiences

4.4 We recognise that how people are treated is just as important as the quality of the clinical care they receive and how quickly they are treated. Poole Hospital is a clean hospital, with friendly staff where patients are treated with courtesy and respect at all times.

Developing our staff and their leadership

4.5 Our staff are the ‘lifeblood’ of the organisation, and without their skills, hard work and commitment we cannot deliver high-quality patient care. It is important we care for them by offering a safe, flexible working environment and that we make full use of their valuable skills through training, development and educational opportunities.

Strengthening the governance and risk regimes

4.6 We put patient safety at the foremost of everything we do. Poole Hospital is a learning organisation where processes and procedures are put in place to maximise the quality of care and minimise risk.

Maintaining strong customer relationships

4.7 Poole Hospital is an outward looking organisation. We are open and honest and listen and respond to our staff, patients and stakeholders. As an NHS Foundation Trust, we will build on existing partnerships within our community and actively encourage staff, patients and local residents to become members, so that they can help to shape the service and make sure it meets the needs of those it serves.

Maximising economically sustainable clinical development opportunities

4.8 Poole Hospital provides high-quality services with short waiting times. It meets demand for services by planning ahead to make best use of available resources – whether they be staff, beds, operating theatres or clinic times. This means better patient care by cutting avoidable waiting times, shortening the time patients stay in hospital and reducing the risk of cancelled operations.

5. WHO WE COMMUNICATE WITH - KEY AUDIENCES

5.1 Poole Hospital will ensure that its communications are planned, relevant and targeted, and that we have identified our key audiences. Key audiences will cover internal, external and third party and stakeholder groups, but in practice there is considerable crossover between each of these. For example, a member of staff could also be a patient or a relative of a patient, or the reverse could be the case. This makes it all the more crucial that our messages are clear and consistent.
Internal audiences

6. HOW WE COMMUNICATE WITH OUR AUDIENCES

6.1 There are many mediums of communication which may be used to convey our messages to key audiences. These may be formal or informal; hi-tech or low tech; simple or sophisticated – there is no 'one size fits all' solution. In all of our communications we will select a medium – or media – to suit the message and the target audience. This may vary according to timing and circumstances. Examples of the some of the means of communication available to Poole Hospital are set out below. They are interchangeable and may be used to communicate with staff, patients, and members of the public or other stakeholders:

Face to face communications:

• Focus groups
• Public meetings
• Annual members’ meeting
• Regular meetings of the board of directors, the hospital executive committee and council of governors
• Medical staff committee
• Media briefings
• Team Brief for senior managers
• Open staff briefings
• Staff and team meetings and briefings
• Conferences and other special events

Written communications:

• Grapevine
• Weekly staff bulletin
• FT Talkback and other newsletters
• Letters to patients
• Press coverage
• Posters and notice boards
• Agendas and minutes of meetings

Electronic communications:

• Email
• Poole Hospital public website (www.poole.nhs.uk)
- NHS Choices website
- Patient forums
- Intranet
- Pager, text messaging/alerts
- Radio and television
- Web casts and blogs
- Social media (including Twitter and Facebook)

7. WHAT WE NEED TO DO - ACTION TO BE TAKEN

7.1 Our current communication priorities are as follows:

- Maintain Poole Hospital’s reputation with key stakeholders through effective and open communication around key issues including changes to the trust’s senior management, the hospital’s financial position and the development of long-term plans for services
- Promote the Poole Hospital brand to external stakeholders, with a particular focus on quality of care and innovation – develop a programme of activities to support this, including increased media presence, web development and promotion, social media activities and PR events
- Ensure staff act as positive ambassadors for the trust, and remain engaged and informed through a continuing programme of internal communications activities. Encourage a ‘passion for Poole’ by recognising and celebrating the achievements of staff and communicating the organisation’s positive ambitions as strategic plans evolve

7.2 The actions that we will take to deliver Poole Hospital’s communications objectives include:

Staff communications

- Regular CEO briefings and Q&A sessions for all staff, providing an effective and accessible forum for two-way communication
- Monthly Team Brief sessions for senior managers, supported by the Team Brief Toolkit, to allow the cascade of key information throughout the organisation
- Effective use of the intranet to share information and engage staff, including management of the home page news section and interactive tools
- Production of high-quality staff publications, including the weekly staff bulletin and quarterly staff magazine Grapevine
- Appropriate use of additional internal communication tools such as all-user emails

External communications

- Engagement with local and specialist media to actively publicise our successes and ensure robust rebuttal of inaccurate reporting
- Planned programme of publicity with key target dates relating to specific developments
- Ongoing management and development of our public website and social media channels to engage with external stakeholders, supported by a strategic plan for digital communications
- Timely publication of an annual report and annual review in line with guidance set down by Monitor
- Public awareness campaigns that support national and local events
- Communications support for member engagement, including the member newsletter FT Talkback, membership recruitment campaigns and events such as the annual members’ meeting and members’ health talks
- Community engagement resulting from our fundraising activities
- Support for patient feedback activities, including appropriate communication of feedback from the trust’s public website, NHS Choices, Friends & Family Test, patient surveys and inspection reports

8. SUPPORTING POLICIES

8.1 It is intended that this strategy will be supported by the following policies:

- Advertising and sponsorship, which sets out the principles for accepting and commissioning advertising and sponsorship
- Media relations policy, which sets out the arrangements in place for handling contacts with the media
- Public consultation, which will set out our processes and procedures for public consultation in line with obligations in line with section 242 of the NHS Act 2006
- Management of the intranet, which will set out processes and procedures governing the storage of information on the intranet

9. SUMMARY

9.1 The communication strategy provides a framework for ensuring that our staff, patients, members of the public and stakeholders are informed, engaged and involved. It sets the out the guiding principles, clear objectives and key messages that are necessary to achieve these goals.
